

The value of a Certificate of Compliance?

Children of Fire challenge

The lead editorial in this issue of Vector (see p.3) tells the story of disabled children that need our help. The 'Children of Fire' shelter has bought a rambling old house in Auckland Park, but the seller left the property in a shocking condition. The place needs a complete electrical refit, with new cables, switchgear, light fittings, switches and sockets. And a valid CoC.

The ECA (SA) has donated R5000 to the cause. EE Publishers has donated R2000, and challenges all Vector readers to match the donation, in cash or in kind.

Are there any accredited contractors willing to donate some time and expertise? Are there any suppliers of the necessary equipment willing to make a donation?

Any donations, in cash or in kind, will be acknowledged in Vector. We will carry the story of how this situation is resolved, and how the young burn victims are given a safe place to live.

You can play a part.

Contact Lisa Sonnekus, ECA, Tel (011) 392-000, lisa@ecasa.co.za Δ

